MRS. GERTRUDE SHAPIRO

WHO'S WHO OF AMERICAN WOMEN

MISS ANN SHAPIRO

Our country, perhaps more than any other, has in recent generations grown more and more accustomed to accepting the idea that women are capable of outstanding accomplishments in many different fields, and has had the grace to recognize it.

Women today excel in many ways, and one of their most important chosen areas of accomplishment is in education. As education's growing importance has progressed by leaps and bounds, we must look to competent persons associated with it.

There is an annual publication devoted to the notable living women of our time, entitled Who's Who of American Women. It is a testimonial to the swift and significant changes in women's careers. The women mentioned in the 1966-1967 volume are those "outstanding as women", those who have paved the way and made the acceptance of women in "men's fields" that much easier for generations to come.

The qualifications for inclusion in this volume are merit and achievement. Two of the new additions to the distinguished book are well known to all connected with N.H. College. One is the President of this college - Gertrude Crockett Shapiro, and the other is Dean of Students and Director of Admissions, Ann Reva Shapiro.

Naturally, we, as the student body of NHC, feel proud that these two women from our college, whom we hold in deep affection and respect, have been singled out for inclusion in such a distinguished list of women for their accomplishments as women in what has previously been regarded as primarily a man's field of activity. They may well be kept before us as an encouragement to the young women of our College.

On the basis of the fact that the people who go to activities make the activities, the Student Council set up the tentative activity schedule for the 1965-66 school year. This basis has proven to be a very correct one to use, but it has resulted in a problem.

This problem can be summarized in two words - SCHOOL SPIRIT. There seems to be a tendency for each student to belong to one of three groups. The first group is comprised of those students who care what type of school they are going to and show this attitude by giving their opinion (both pro and con) to both the Student Council and the Administration. These students, unfortunately, are in a minority group. The second group of students are the type who dislike the way the Student Council runs activities but air their opinions either in the hallways or other places other than at Student Council Meetings or to its members. This group is also in the minority class. The largest group of students contain those people who are indifferent or who just do not

GENERAL ASSEMBLIES

Being open minded, The Pen asks the Administration: Why don't we HAVE ASSEMBLIES? When the Administration is defending a controversial decision, such as tuition increases, it sometimes defends its position with the rejoinder that other colleges are doing the same. Well, other colleges also have assemblies with speakers, films and so forth. - Why don't we? Is it possible that we don't need lectures from outside speakers on subjects not directly connected with the courses we are taking? Colleges with broader based curricula have them and it would seem that we need them at least as much as they do. Our lecturers and instructors assign us outside readings and encourage us to use as many and varied sources for our work as possible. -- Yet, last year, we did not have one speaker to help broaden our education on a college-wide level.

I may be wrong, but it would seem to me that outside speakers are an excellent way of seeing to it that our education is not limited to the courses we take. There is more to an education than the courses you take. Learning to listen to and evaluate all sides of a question, and learning the value of attending lectures as just one way of continuing our education after we leave college, are both things we should learn and could learn here if exposed to speakers now.

care about the school. They lack the quality of school spirit.

It is the aim of this year's Student Council, if nothing else is achieved, to try to instill the same attitude the first group has to the whole student body.

A committee has been set up, including both Student Council members and representatives from the student body, to try to find the reason why there is a lack of interest or spirit among the student body. This committee was initiated by three students who came to the Student Council meeting (Nov. 3) to air their opinion on the functions proposed by the Council, the school spirit, and the Student Council itself. No one can say what the outcome of this meeting will be but we feel that it is a step in the right direction. It does prove that if a student desires something and is willing to take the time and effort to go to a council meeting then we are willing to help you.

On November 15, there will be a meeting of the entire Student Body. At this meeting the results of the above committee will be reported, and each student will also receive a copy of the student council budget which will be explained, so each student will know how his or her activity fee is being used.

At last I'm in college!

Thank goodness I have no teachers coddling me; no one pushing me into studies at too rapid a clip; no more daily tardy slips to be carried to the principal's office.

At last I'm in an institution of higher learning. Here I pay my tuition and am permitted to study at my speed; I may upon occasion cut a class, when I know in so doing I will not adversely affect my academic standing. My testing results are given a thorough critique by Knowledgeable experts.

The result of this environment have and are moulding me into a responsible, well-educated, self-reliant, compassionate human; a MAN in the truest sense -- OR ARE THEY...

MRS. JORDAN

Faculty Personality

When you visit the college library, you will find a librarian who is always willing to help you out. She seems to know just what you want and where to find it. If the college library doesn't have the needed material, she uses her imagination to recommend other possibilities.

Mrs. Jordan is a graduate of Whitman College and has done graduate work at the University of Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and currently doing work at the University of New Hampshire. Mrs. Jordan first came to New Hampshire in 1946 with her husband, who was working for WMUR TV in its founding days.

Mrs. Jordan, her husband, and young son sailed from Portsmouth, New Hampshire on November 2, 1950. Though the weather was rough, and more than one morning there was frost on the deck of the 36 foot sailboat, Mrs. Jordan sailed as far as Florida with her husband. She then proceeded across country to Seattle. At the same time, her husband was sailing from the West Indies to the Panama Canal then up the Pacific coast to meet her. In the years following this trip, Mrs. Jordan has traveled on other continents. Some of the countries that she has lived in are, Norway for four years, Ethiopia for a year, Germany, and other countries.

One of Mrs. Jordan's most interesting stays was in Ethiopia. While there she attended the University of Addis Ababa for a year. Journalism was her field of study, and she had many interesting experiences working on the school newspaper. Mrs. Jordan was working with Indian, European and native students, and an American girl, the first four year American student in the University.

Mrs. Jordan feels by having a small library we are not at a disadvantage. Explaining this Mrs. Jordan said, "By having a small library, it is easier for us to learn how a library is organized, and enables us to feel at home in any large library."

When asked where she would like to go now she replied "What I would like to do now is to sail the Grecian Islands." We only hope Mrs. Jordan doesn't set sail soon, for she is a valuable asset to our college.

FOREIGN FILMS

Manchester Institute of Arts and Sciences is presenting a foreign film series featuring "Umbrellas Chenbong", French; "Topkapi," American; "That Man From Rio," English; "Los Tarantos," Spanish; "Children of Paradise," French; and "Woman of the Dunes," Japanese. Students may view these six foreign films at a Student Membership cost of $5.00, which includes also a few other privileges. This may be the perfect opportunity for a student to broaden his education in the field of the arts. Interested students may obtain more information from the Institute at 148 Concord Street.

Faculty On The Go-Go

Recently Mrs. Helen Donaldson of New Hampshire College attended the 1965 annual workshop of the New England Junior Colleges of Business. The theme of the workshop 1965 was "The Challenge of Changing Requirements, Where Do We Go From Here?" -- a topic very familiar to our upperclassmen as well as to our faculty and administration. Mrs. Donaldson participated as a panel member of a discussion group on "General and Liberal Subjects".

Outing Club Activities

The Outing Club has held two meetings so far this year. The new officers are as follows:

President - Dinise Milinovich
Vice-president - Richard

Finkler

Secretary - Linda Prince
Treasurer - Richard Bradley

Many plans for the year are being made, and one really big project is underway. It is a winter ski trip to be held January 30, 31 and February 1. Letters have been written to various lodges inquiring about cost of lodging and other facilities. We have received some answers, but as yet there is no definite decision as to where we will stay. It's going to be a really big weekend, even for those who don't ski.

A hootenanny, which will be sponsored by the Outing Club to raise money for the ski trip, will take place November 17. It will be in the Odd Fellows Building, third floor, from 8 to 11:30 p.m. Admission will be 69¢ per person or 99¢ a couple. Bring your own blankets.

Other plans are a roller skating party, ice skating party, hiking trips in the spring, along with a summer day and a water skiing party.

The Outing Club is in for its biggest year yet. Want to have some fun? Join.

Cheerleaders

Baskets, baskets, baskets, boys
You make the baskets,
We'll make the noise.

Before long this cry will ring out. The 1965-66 basketball season will get underway on December 2 against Burdette College. The cheerleaders are Jo Ann LaRocca, captain, Muriel Chauvin, Gloria Michaud, Janice Bonnin, Carol Sue Brown, Mary Ellen Shiber and Lynn Paris. During the games the cheerleaders ask your help to cheer "our winning team" on to another successful season. All home basketball games will be played at Bishop Bradley High School. This is your team, so come to the games and show your school spirit.

See you there!

STUDENT GOVERNMENT SEMI-FORMAL

The Highway Motel in Concord is the place. Friday, December 10, at 8:00 p.m. is the time. Will you be there?

The annual winter semi-formal dance will be the high light of the NHC social season. Each year this dance has been a popular event.

Music will be provided by the Freddie Statirio Orchestra. Refreshments will be served. The Student Government wishes to extend an invitation to the faculty and students of NHC to attend this affair. This year the Student Government will be selling ashtrays with the school seal as favors.

Dress is semi-formal and students are reminded they must have their student activity cards. It is hoped that all students will attend and help celebrate the social season.

ular ski season, will inform the students of the activation, race results, and participation of the newly reorganized New Hampshire College ski team. I truly hope that this article will be of interest and benefit to those who read The Pen.
