SUCCESSFUL PROJECT

A special evening program was held on campus recently honoring 12 Manchester public school students who had completed a unique typing course at NHC. A 10-week experimental project developed by Assistant Professor Jean Silver afforded NHC Business Teacher Education majors the opportunity to employ both group and individual teaching methods with pupils from the 5th to 9th grades. NHC students involved in the project, a part of their Methods of Teaching Typing course, were Paul Rounds, Brattleboro, Vt.; John Willenbacher, Manchester; Mary Kelly, Brighton, Mass.; Dave Schoff, Maynard, Mass.; Cindy Clogston, Pittsburg, NH; Lloyd Ranlett, Salem, NH; Michael Boland, Lowell, Mass.; Tom Burnham, Nashua, NH; Dennis Dodge, Bath Maine; Paul Dion, Beverly, Mass.; Janet Yerdon, Cherry Valley, NY; and Nina Toscano, Congers, NY.

SUCCESSFUL PROJECT Continued

Academic Dean James Grace, assisted by Dr. R. John Reynolds, presented completion certificates to the young typists at a ceremony attended by their parents. Star performer in the class, which had a 1 - 1 ratio of teacher to pupil, was Susan Brien of the 8th grade in Southside Junior High School. She advanced from an early speed of 16 words per minute to 57 words per minute at the end of the 10 weeks of typing instruction from NHC Business Education majors.

SMOKING OR NO SMOKING?

Although most people are not aware of the fact, two out of every three adults are non-smokers. Despite this, non-smokers have traditionally felt themselves to be a minority. These same "non-smokers", nonetheless, can inhale the equivalent of a pack of cigarettes just by spending a typical eight-hour working day in a smoky environment. In fact, the carbon monoxide given off by cigarettes in smoke-filled rooms often exceeds Environmental Protection Agency safety recommendations that suggest that an individual could be safely exposed to such a concentration for a maximum of only an hour, not more than once a year.

According to a national study, children growing up in homes where parents smoke have faster heart rates and higher blood pressures and can also experience more frequent illnesses of the respiratory system. Also, acute respiratory illnesses are more frequent among children in homes where the parents smoked than among children of non-smoking parents.

Some insurance companies are now considering giving lower premiums to people who can show some proof that they are non-smokers. Non-smokers have fewer accidents in cars and fewer fires at home. Lighting cigarettes or dropping ashes in one's lap have been seen to be unnecessary hazards while driving. Several insurance companies already give lower life insurance premiums to non-smokers.

Most of the information in this article was supplied by the New Hampshire Lung Association, 456 Beech Street, Manchester. More detailed information is available through them. The next article will deal with action being taken by non-smokers to gain their rights as they see them. Brian Gorden, Chairman, Committee to Study Smoking in Classrooms
