IN CONCERT

The air was clean, the grass was green
There were stable dollars, and peace
In fact, the only stuff that made things rough
Were those black leather jackets and grease

In those days of yore, by the candy store
The nights were cool and heavy
With Betty Lou and Mary Sue
And a souped-up convertible chevy

But those days are gone, and gone they are
With words like groovy and nifty
But we can return, we have recently learned
To that era of the fabulous fifties

This Friday night will take you back
To the days of stomping and Bristol
With a guy named Bo Diddley, a group called the Happenings
And three beautiful girls called the Crystals

"He's a Rebel", and "Uptown" and "See You in September"
Are just a few, that will give you a view
Of those days that are hard to remember

Two bucks a shot, and that's not a lot
For those of you who know the score
But for those who fail to move their tail
Tickets are three bucks at the door.
--Gabe Cohen
